28.09. – 150 minutes

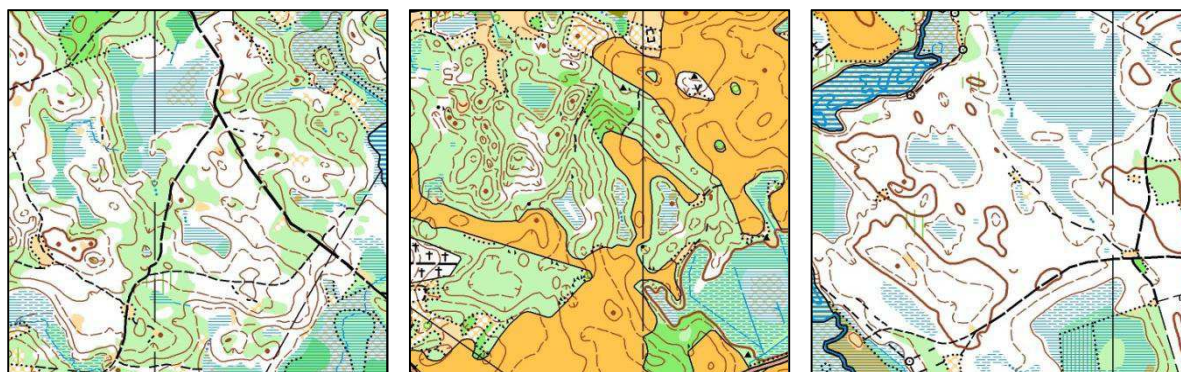

TERRAIN AND MAP

Southern slope of Haanja upland, absolute heights in the terrain vary between 230 m a.s.l in the northern part and 175m a.s.l. in the southern part of the map. Maximum height difference on one slope is 20 metres. Medium-sized and small hills and depressions are interlaced by marshes of different shapes and sizes. The terrain is very variable in regard to contour features and vegetation. Mixed forest with spruces and pines dominating. Runnability varies from very good to poor. Network of roads, paths and narrow rides is quite poor. Paths and narrow rides are often overgrown. Forested areas make up to 80% of the terrain.

Map: Kuura (2014020). Map-maker Kalle Kalm. Fieldwork 2012-2013. Latest corrections summer 2014. Contour interval 5 metres. Previous map Kuura (2013006) was used on Baltic Orienteering Championships in may 2013. More than 2 km² of new terrain were added to the map in autumn 2013. Map is drawn according to the ISOM 2000.

NB! Competition area is out-of-bounds for orienteers until the first competition day! Outline of the area: <http://www.orienteerumine.ee/kalender/index.php?view=voistlus&id=5127>.
